cure of Deafness and noises in the ears, with which I have suffered for four years; and can say that I have been greatly benefited by its use, although I have applied it but

LIGHTHILL—DEAR SIR:—Your treatment in the cure of my Catarrib has had the desired effect, and resulted in permanent good to me, although my case has frequently been pronounced incurable, and I had exhausted all other modes of treatment, without the least benefit. My case was so chronic and troublesome, that by giving a few of the symptoms the value of your treatment can be more readily estimated. For years I had been afflicted with a constant cold in the head, obstructing my breathing so as to ring sleep; latterly the discharges became solidified and impacted in my nose to such an extent that it required the greatest exertion to expel them. Sometimes these haraened lumps would get in my throat causing me to hawk and scrape even by the hour to relieve myself. My breath was offensive; my memory became impaired. Dizzines and light headiness made their appearance, and of late symptoms of paralysis stepped in, and when I placed myself under your care one side of my face was badly affected by this dread disease. My general health suffered allke, there was a constant thed, drowsy and debilitated feeling, with no energy to move or act; feit as tired on rising in the morning as I did on going to my bed, my appetite was capricions and my disposition morose. In that condition I placed myself under your care, and am happy to state that all those disagreeable and dangerous symptoms by the benefits of good health. By giving this publicity you will benefit others similarly affected and oblige me. Yours truly, JAMES SOMMENVILLE,

I have known Mr. James Fommerville, from Brookville, Jefferson county, for many years, and can testify to his statement as one of truth and versativ.

Joint resolution to expect the second February, 1869.

Joint resolution to provide for the temporary continuance of the Seat of Gov ernment at the City of Wheeling,

Resolved, &c., That the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Delegrates, on behalf of the State of West Virginia, sign the proposed agreement submitted to the two Houses, between the State of West Virginia and certain residents of the city of Wheeling respecting the temporary contining, respecting the temporary contin-usnce of the Sent of Government, and of the State at that city; and that the joint committee mentioned in the said agreement consist of two members of the Senate and three of the House of the Senate and three of the House of Delegates, to be appointed by the pre-siding officers respectively of the two

Mr. Carroll referred to the fact that at an early day of the session a resolu-tion had been passed by the House depose the proposition was accepted, the next Legislature could repeal it and locate somewhere else, and if it was now He moved the lindefinite postponement of the resolution and report.

Mr. Lamb said the proposition before the House was not for a permanent location. The people of Wheeling had never entertained any other thought than that the Capital could not be per-manently retained here. Nor would the acceptance of the present proposi-tion prevent a permanent location after the period indicated in the proposed contract. The members of the House must be sensible that if they do not intend to accept what the gentleman from Wayne called "charity," that the finances of the State are not in a condiwayne cated the State are not in a condition to embark in the erection of the necessary public buildings—which in the end would certainly cost the State not less than a million of dollars. The proposition here made was to relieve the State for the present from that difficulty, to bridge over a time till the resources of the State will be sufficiently developed and the wishes of the people better understood, when the whole State would be prepared to settle this question so as to best comport with the interests of the whole people. The gentleman from Wayne urged that this was no better proposition than that offered by Parkersburg. He should remember Parkerburg asked to have it permanently. If a permanent location were made they could not alter it under the wording of Prayer by Rev. R. A. Arthur, of the M. E. Church.

As for the robelis in Wheeling, they had a brought forward the proposition now under consideration. As for the robelis in Wheeling, they were Union men during the war almost without exception, and did their utmost for the suppression of the rebellion. It was true many people here differed with the expediency of political measures, and they had a right to. But they always had supported the Government of the suppression of the rebellion. It was true many people here differed with the gentleman from Wayne in regard to the expediency of political measures, and they had a right to. But they always had supported the Government of the verbelion of the rebellion. As for the robellion of the rebellion of the rebellio onlied States and of west with a saked that gentlemen to look back at the past history of the Union party of West Virginia and teil us where West Virginia would have been to-day, what would have been her condition, had not Wheeling—in conjunction, it was true, with patriotic men of other sections of the State—taken at the very outset of the rebellion, when there was danger in assuming the position she did, a poin assuming the position she did, a position firmly and unitedly in support of the United States and in opposition to secession. No man knew better than himself what was due to the people of Ohio county and of the Pan Handle, and to the other patriotic men who supported them in the movement here and then inaugurated for the rescue of West Virginia from the hands of secession. Mr. Smith, of Morgan, followed in a speech of considerable length the bur-den of which consisted in the expres sion of his scorn and detestation for the city and people of Wheeling. He re-ferred to a remark in the Register at the time the Legislature had visited the Penitentiary, expressing regrets that the doors had not closed on them, becharter of Mason city.

Mr. Smith, of Kanawha, from the Special Committee of West Virginia, the Public Helmond before the war, as it appeared to a member from Western appeared to a member from Western Virginia, of the attentions paid to members, of the seductions by which they were surrounied and how every effort was made to make the honorable members comfortable. He had been laboring here and leaving his other busins as a still city, suitable buildings and tooms for the accommodation of both branches of the Legislature to be appointed at the present session.

And in Consideration of the above agreement, the State of West Virginia hereby agrees that the seat of government of t tion had been passed by the House declaring that a location of the Capital ought to be made. He thought it the duty of the House now to stand by that resolution. He found fault with Wheeling for not bringing forward her proposition earlier. She had made no offer until it had become probable a location would be made.

The offer was no better than that made by Parkersburg which had proposed to furnish buildings for five years free. Referring to the charge which had been made that Parkersburg was a Democratic town, he said there were more rebels in Wheeling than there are people in Parkersburg. He said the State was not under the necessity of asking buildings free as a charity. The object of the Wheeling proposition was to defeat a permanent location. It was not made sooner because the people of Wheeling thought perhaps they could keep the Capital without giving anything. He said the newspaper representing the dominant party here, had been slandering the Legislature four or five years. As a general thing the people of Wheeling take no account of the assembling of the Legislature as a sort of scape-goat and laughing stock and daughters to assembling of the Legislature as a sort of scape-goat and laughing stock as a sening the dominant party here had been slandering that no account of the duty of the House now while the State is paying its own expense for a State House, the citizens of Wheeling assumed that he supposed the same bers of the Legislature of the citizens of Wheeling assumed that he supposed the same bers of the Legislature and that he supposed the citizens of this robbery as having taken place with they proposed to donate the State in any other way, they would steal it any other way, they would not supposed after the citizens of the Legislature while they vere asleep. Referring to the same bers of the Legislature of the citizens of Wheeling, who would not allow their wives and daughters to associate to party had made the Legislature a sort of scape-goat and laughing stock for several years. The exponent of the dominant party here had referred to the by some means, enough to make them-selves whole. The gentleman proceed-ed in this strain at considerable length ed in this strain at considerable length and with great vehemence: He concluded his remarks by reading a proposition signed by the citizens of Parkersburg, proposing to accommodate the State free, until the erection of public buildings, and donating $50,000 cash to be expended on the Capitol building.

mr. Pinnell said he had listened with Mr. Pinnell said he had listened with a good deal of mortification and pain to the repeated attacks here on the citizens of Wheeling. He did not know that he was any favorite of Wheeling, nor that they occupied a position in his affections beyond what they are legitimately entitled to. But from his knowledge of the citizens of Wheeling, he knew that the attacks made here were wholly of the citizens of Wheeling, he knew that the attacks made here were wholly unjustifiable, unkind and void of gratitude. He happened to know something about the citizens of Wheeling at the time this State was grappling with the enemy for her existence in the Union. He was a member of the Convention that first met here under the restored Government, and he recollected with pleasure the open arms with restored Government, and he recollected with pleasure the open arms with which the citizens of Wheeling received them from the interior and border counties of the State. I know of my own knowledge, he said, that gentlemen whose names are appended to that proposition, when we had not a dollar to prove a prepage—not a dollar to prospay our expenses—not a dollar to pros-ecute the restoration of the State threw open the vaults of the banks to us, farnished us money an t material by which we were enabled to make the State fast to her moorings on the banks State fast to her moorings on the banks of the Ohio. I know that some of the gentlemen who acted with us then have seen fit since to disagree with us politically, but I know that even these gentlemen then afforded the most material and efficient aid that could not have been had from any other quarter. And now because at the hour of midnight—as there are in the light way attragglars found their the hour of midnight—as there are in all cities—some stragglers found their way into a private boarding house where members had taken up their board, and robbed them of their watches and money, it was unbecoming a Virginian to brand this community with dishonesty and theft. There was within the corporate limits of Wheeling, as loyal and hospitable a spirit as he had found in the bosoms of Virginians anywhere. Why this appeal to passion, to party and to prejudice, to carry into execution a plan peal to passion, to party and to prejudice, to carry into execution a plan which, if consummated, must blight the prospects of the State for years to come. It was unbecoming a Legislature, and gentlemen would find when the vote was taken that they were mistaken in the material they were appealing to. He appealed to members to distribute the property of party and the property of party o vest themselves of personal, sectional or political feeling, and deal with the question as statesmen—not degrade themselves so much as to come down to an attempt to malign and slander and injure the fair fame of a class of persons who stand equal to any before the coun-try for their loyalty, hospitality and moral honesty. Mr. Carroll moved the previous ques-

Under this resolution the Speaker appointed the committee of investigation on the part of the House as follows: Messrs. Carroll, Howes and Jacob, of Hampshire.

Mr. Mann, rising to a question of privilege desired to say in regard to the strain of remark that had been indulged in, in regard to stealing from members, that he had been one of the relations of the r as a manufacturing city and only wished that other candidates for the Capital had equal merits in that way. It was true there were some rebels here. So there were everywhere. Locate the Capital where they would they would find some; but he disclaimed the idea that all Democrats were rebels. A Democrat might be as good a Union man as anybody and still be a Democrat. For himself, he avowed he was not the creature of any party, and would as soon be the slave of a South Carolina planter as to be the mere slave of a party without the manhood to re-

Carolina planter as to be the mere slave of a party without the manhood to refuse to obey its beheats if it asked him to do wrong.

Mr. Flick followed in a speech in which he rather went beyond the member of Morgan, in denunciation of Wheeling. He declared that in making this proposition the citizens of Wheeling. He declared that in making this proposition the citizens of Wheeling, and he had been treated here kindly and honorably, and had no charges as had been made against the citizens of Wheeling, and he wanted it distinctly understood his vote had been influenced by no such appeals. If anything would have defor the State. He referred to the fact that some members had been robbed of money and yaluables during the session, and said if the citizens of Wheeling could not get back the money which they proposed to donate the State eral enough in their political views to allow every one his own opinion. Mr. Flick said that in the heat of discussion he might have said things which he ought not to have said. He had no charges against the people of Wheeling. What he said was more in a jocose way than anything else. The House adjourned. Scott, the peanut vender, takes as very unkind the remarks made by Mr. Smith, of Morgan, in the House yesterday, on the subject of peanuts, Scott thinks they were designed to injure his business, and were meant to be personal. He says it is not the practice among peanut merchants to give away their goods; nor to trust where the been slandering the Legislature but of five years. As a general thing the people of Wheeling take no account of the Legislature, and never come near except when they wanted some paper signed or some measure passed.
